The outer structure draws a microcosm, a small temple brought to life by the gentle flow of light tracing its perimeter.

Framed by solid wood details, the suspended cabinet becomes the focal point: its inlaid doors are dressed in new patterns and colours, telling a story made of material and light.

The opening is revealed through a continuous groove that runs along its full height, a discreet yet decisive gesture that highlights the purity of the lines. Versatile and distinctive, Delfi finds expression in different settings: it can hold the most precious kitchen objects or transform into an intimate bar area within the living space.
