

KAEL

TABLES AND SMALL TABLES | Indoor
BAXTER P.

The Kael coffee table collection, designed by Baxter P., asserts itself in space like a domestic architecture. Composed of a series of tables that create a material dialogue, transforming each piece into a sculptural presence. At the heart of the project is the internal okoumé structure supporting a surface of strong character: a sand-colored spatulated concrete slab, enriched with mineral aggregates that give the top a unique tactile and visual depth. The final effect is a vibrant surface whose irregularities and nuances celebrate the craftsmanship of manual work. The sand color, neutral and enveloping, allows Kael to integrate naturally into different stylistic contexts, from the most minimalist living spaces to a sophisticated reading corner. The Kael coffee table explores the beauty of time and material: an object that does not merely occupy space but anchors it to the ground, instilling a sense of solidity and calm in every contemporary environment that seeks uniqueness.
